Many Fined For Breaches of Traffic Bylaws

Auto Drivers Fined, Non-observance of Stop Signs is Expensive Negligence.

During the past two weeks extra vigilance has been kept by the town police of the stop signs in Coleman on the main highway.

Most offences are on car drivers returning from the lake dance on Saturday nights. Nearly twenty have been fined, most of the fines and costs amounting to $5.00 each. This is an expensive negligence, but many complaints have been made by residents, and there is also danger of accidents, particularly when the highway is dusty, as it is most of the summer.

Those fined included young men from Coleman, Bellevue, and one from Lundbreck.

One Coleman man was fined $15.00 and costs for other motoring offences in addition to passing a stop sign.

Among last week's car accidents was that of a member of the R.C.M.P. coming to grief in the Frank Slide, when his car skidded off the highway, requiring the wrecking truck to haul it out.

L.O.B.A. ATTEND CHURCH SERVICE

Members of the L.O.B.A. lodge attended service at St. Albans church on Sunday evening, commemorating of the "Twelfth of July." Rev John R. Hague extended greetings to the members, who occupied the front pews. The worthy mistress of the lodge is Mrs. Robert Holmes and the secretary Mrs. R. Parry.

The address of Mr. Hague's was on missionary work in India, based on a talk at the Anglican summer school at Banff by a missionary from that country.

Mrs. J. O. C. McDonald motored to Fernie on Friday to visit her daughter, Mrs. W. Whittaker, and was accompanied by Mrs. T. Keith MacLean.

BELLEVUE DRUG STORE POPULAR ESTABLISHMENT

BELLEVUE Drug Store, owned by Iris Hayes, popular business man, well known throughout The Pass, and formerly of Coleman, now has an ice cream bar, serving a delicious product which evidently is appreciated by Bellevue people, judging by the "run" on ice cream cones and sandwiches. Iris, a former Coleman school pupil, who took his pharmacy course at Alberta university, is assistant during the summer months by his brother Alwyn, who also is studying at Alberta university. The store is bright and well stocked, and the ice cream bar will make it increasingly popular.

Hockey Club Is Planning Novel Carnival, Aug.

Energetic Executive Planning on Big Time in 1938-39 Season—Draw for Prizes at Carnival.

The carnival being arranged to take place on August 6th and 8th in the arena will have many novel features, with a program of events on the dance floor. A competition among business men, which President Gardner is arranging, will have surprises for contestants as well as spectators.

A fortune-teller, whose reputation for diving into the future is said to be without parallel, will be available both nights, it is expected, to enable the curious to get a peep into their future.

The prizes at the booths will be of a useful nature, including such articles as hardware, groceries, dry goods and other things useful in any household.

On the first night the drawing for the major prize, a fine electric refrigerator, will be held, and on Monday night the drawing for the Chesterfield will be held. The tickets for the drawings are 50¢ each or three for $1.00.

The entire profits of the carnival will be given to the money that is being issued this week. Everyone by supporting the carnival will help to put the club in good financial shape to start the season, so give a hand, everyone!

ADDITION TO HOCKEY TALENT

Ben Redsky, of Winnipeg, will arrive here soon to swell the ranks of Coleman hockey talent. Ben, a centre man, is a former team mate of Kitchener and Marquette, the players being together in Winnipeg. It is said he is quite capable of playing hockey of a high a calibre as these two boys who starred so brilliantly for Trail last year.

HON. DR. R. J. MANION

The newly appointed leader of the National Conservative party succeeds Rt. Hon. R. B. Bennett, and his election has proved highly popular throughout the Dominion.

He addressed a public meeting in Coleman during the 1930 federal election campaign, and is a rapid and convincing speaker. The retiring leader, Mr. Bennett, was given a rousing ovation during the Ottawa convention, and political friends and foes agree that he has served his country well throughout his entire political career, which commenced in Calgary forty years ago.

Dr. Manion's leadership will bring renewed enthusiasm to the Conservative forces, and will also strengthen the ideals of democratic government as carried on by the two parties, Liberal and Conservative, under which Canada has been developed since Confederation in 1867.

WEDDINGS

POPULAR COUPLE WED ON DOMINION DAY

St. Paul's United church was the scene of a pretty wedding on July 1st, when the Rev. H. J. Bevan solemnized the marriage of Alra Gwen, eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. J. Brown, and John Roach, second son of Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Cousins, both of Coleman.

The bride, who was given away by her father, looked lovely in a floor-length gown of white satin. Her long veil hung from a coronet of orange blossoms and she carried red roses and sweet peas.

Miss Dilys Brown was her sister's bridesmaid, having returned home from Edmonton for the occasion. She chose a floor-length gown of white organdy, with pink accessories and carried a bouquet of pink and white carnations.

The groom was supported by his brother James as best man. Aida Richards and Billy Cousins, nieces and nephews of the groom, were flower girl and page boy. Miss Olsen Brown, youngest sister of the bride, played the organ.

After the ceremony, the guests were received at the bride's home by Mrs. Brown and Mrs. Cousins, senior.

Forty relatives and friends sat down to the wedding breakfast. The toast to the bride was answered by Mr. Bevan, and the groom responded.

Out of town guests included Mr. and Mrs. F. Brown and Miss Betty Campbell of Edmonton, and Mr. and Mrs. H. Blakely of Blairmore.

After the reception the happy couple left by car for Vancouver and other points on the coast. For her travelling costume Mrs. Cousins chose a sky-blue knitted suit, with a silver fox fur and white accessories.

Upon their return from their honeymoon, they will take up residence in Coleman.

LLEWELLYN—YOUNG

St. Augustine's was the setting for the wedding of Miss Katherine Young, daughter of Mrs. William Young and the late Mr. Young, of Lethbridge, to Thomas Godwin Llewellyn, son of Mr. Llewellyn and the late Mrs. Llewellyn, of Coleman, formerly of Lethbridge.

The ceremony was performed by the Rev. P. C. Wade in the presence of immediate relatives, with Mr. and Mrs. Richard Arthur Henderson, of Lethbridge, being the attendants.

Mr. and Mrs. Llewellyn will take up residence in Coleman.—Lethbridge Herald.

Visitors to Lethbridge over the week end were S. B. Ryan, Mrs. Kilgannon, senior, and Mr. and Mrs. James Kilgannon.

Presentations to Retiring Doct'r's Borden, M'Lean

Tonight in the Italian hall at 7.30, friends of Doctor Borden, and Dr. MacLean will meet to honor them on their departure from Coleman. Since 1926 Dr. Borden has lived here, and Dr. MacLean since 1932. They terminated their medical contract with the companies and employees, and the former will establish himself in practice in that lively Okanagan town of Penticton, while Dr. MacLean will take a post-graduate course at Harvard Medical College, Boston.

Both have made a wide circle of friends during their residence here, and the gathering tonight will be an expression of goodwill, when presentations of Waltham gold watches will be made, suitably engraved.

The contract requires men of high standing in the profession, and calls for surgical skill far above the average. Mining entails hazards to those employed, and operations have to be performed with as little delay as possible to save men's lives. Day and night emergency calls have to be met, and action decided on as quickly as possible.

Dr. Borden's wide experience especially fitted him for the duties and services required in a large mining camp, and as a surgeon he built up an enviable reputation. Two years ago he spent a year taking post-graduate work and attending clinics in England, so that knowledge gained might be of service to his clientele.

Dr. MacLean, though a younger man in the profession, came here from Alberta university, and has proved himself a skilled practitioner and surgeon. Many in Coleman regret their decision to leave, but are confident they will continue to enhance the professional reputations they have gained here.

Several private gatherings in honor of Mrs. Borden and Mrs. MacLean were held during the past two weeks, and sincere good wishes will follow the doctors and their wives in their new duties. The Journal joins in its tribute of appreciation of their services over the past years, feeling that their departure causes a gap in the professional and social life of the town.

Dr. Sweeney, who has been assisting the retiring doctors for several months, will engage in practice with Dr. Borden in Penticton.

Master Jim Hodges, of Lethbridge, is spending part of his school holidays with George Lothian, of Graftontown.

MAKING CANADA

A BETTER PLACE IN WHICH TO LIVE AND WORK
A Series of Letters from Distinguished Canadians on Vital
Problems Affecting the Future Welfare of Canada

Specially Written for Canadian Weekly Newspapers Association

I should like to say that the officers of the Canadian National Railways are always conscious of the importance part the weekly newspapers play in Canadian affairs and that we fully appreciate the keen interest the members of our association take in the welfare of the National Railways System. We have noticed with satisfaction that you have extended this to Canada's newest enterprise, the Trans-Canada Air Lines.

I hope that the weekly newspapers will continue their valuable work of fostering a spirit of unity throughout the Dominion and encouraging Canadians to work for steady improvement in conditions by avoiding useless controversies which can only tend to retard the nation's progress. Above all, I hope you will carry on your discouragement of those pessimists who seem to have no other contribution to make than the forecast of disaster. The things to be advocated today, it seems to me, are the avoidance of anything which might cause sectional, racial or any other form of strife, and the positive qualities of some optimism and hard work. These, I think you will agree, are Canadian characteristics. It is not enough to recognize them and be proud of them; we must maintain and extend them.

With kind regards and all good wishes to your membership and to yourself, I am,
Yours faithfully,
S. J. HUNGERFORD,
Chairman and President,
Canadian National Railways.

Trees To The Rescue

With the drought now definitely broken over the greater part of the prairie provinces and prospects of a period of more abundant moisture apparently bright, the time appears to have arrived when further consideration might well be given to the advantages of a definite and well-coordinated program of tree planting throughout sparsely treed and treeless areas as a rehabilitation measure.

It is noted, of course, that tree planting is included as one of the items in the rehabilitation program outlined two or three years ago as part of the Prairie Farm Rehabilitation program but to date comparatively little has been heard of this item, attention so far having been mainly centred on the construction of dugouts, dams and minor irrigation projects.

Undoubtedly tree planting will follow in many of the districts now being served or about to be served by recently constructed irrigation schemes as a matter of course, but there are still many areas and individual farms for which topographical and other reasons do not lend themselves to watering by feasible irrigation projects, but in these areas, also, there appears to be no reason how why tree planting should not be pushed ahead to the extent that available time and power permits.

A Valuable Aid

That trees, wherever they can be made to serve the purpose can play an important part in farm economies and can be made to do so in many, sometimes even under adverse conditions, towards ensuring sustainability, the farm has been amply demonstrated in many individual cases, as witness the following extract from the annual report of the Canadian Forestry Association, dealing with southern Saskatchewan conditions.

"Every district visited furnished striking proof of the possibility of the southern farmer becoming self-sustaining so far as food home supplies are concerned. Had the farm garden been a universal policy instead of being completely overlooked, or at best, in most cases, a haphazard venture, countless millions in food costs during the past nine years could have been avoided. Every farmer can grow his own needs anywhere throughout the south country, and no objective short of this is good enough, and nothing but sound educational progress can achieve it."

"At Plapot, on the main line of the C.P.R., in an area of nine failures of wheat, we visited a man who inside his walls of trees raised all his own needs this year—250 bushels of potatoes, all vegetables, many jars of small fruits, melons and even plums and apples. Every farmer in that area could have done the same had he a few years ago given the need of such things proper consideration."

Can Supply Here

Whether or not the Plapot farmer referred to in the foregoing extract had sufficient water available for his garden to take the place of rainfall during years when moisture was not sufficient to raise wheat crops the forestry association's report does not say, but it does at least demonstrate that a year of normal precipitation every farmer in the country could supply his own basic requirements practically the year round, provided he has the requisite shelter in the form of trees and hedges."

It is too late, of course, to plant trees this year, but it is not yet too late to prepare soil for a shelter belt to be planted next year; indeed, this advance cultivation and preparation is a requisite to a successful planting. This, as no doubt, most farmers know is stressed by the authorities of the Dominion Forestry farm who supply millions of trees free to farmers throughout the west every spring.

Mortality among man-planted trees in the drought areas of the west has been high during the drought period, but, at the same time, it is surprising how many trees have, with some care and attention, withstood the ravages of a long period of dry weather. They have not made much top growth, it is true, but they have rooted deeper and deeper to reach the dwindling moisture reserves and now these trees are responding again to more copious precipitation."

Opportunity Again Here

The experience of others demonstrates that the mortality of the drought years need not act as a deterrent to the planting of trees on the farm. On the contrary it goes to show that, even during a dry period, they are of immense benefit and with the drought now presumably broken it should afford every encouragement to the individual farmer to take active steps to provide at least for some of his needs in future years, by establishing a good shelter belt at the first opportunity his circumstances permit.

It should further be pointed out that there are many farmers, even in the drought area, who had sufficient water to maintain a garden, if in earlier years they had provided the necessary shelter for vegetables and fruit trees. This omission can now be repaired in many cases and with the return of a period of greater precipitation it looks as if the time has arrived when trees should be planted more abundantly.

Full Operation Delayed

Barbed Wire Wall

Fifty-Mile Fence To Be Built In Palestine

Nearly $450,000 is to be spent in Palestine in constructing a barbed-wire wall along the frontier where Lebanon, Syria and Trans-Jordan impinge upon Palestine in the hope that Tegart's wall, named after Sir Charles Tegart, its prime advocate, may be effective in keeping smugglers, agitators, gun runners, terrorists and fugitives from justice from using the border zone as a base of operations.

A despatch to the London Times from Jerusalem says that specifications of the plan call for 50 miles of barbed-wire fence, varying in construction according to local conditions. The standard barrier apparently will consist of two parallel fences six feet high and five feet apart.

Each of the fences will have meshed wire at the bottom and barbed-wire above, and the space between the two fences will be crisscrossed with barbed-wire and filled with loose masses of wire. Where local conditions call for even more formidable barrier than this there will be three parallel fences—New York Sun.

Protect The Birds

Are Dependable Allies Of The Farmer In Destroying Insect Pests

Birds are the farmers' and gardeners' dependable allies in combating insect pests. Close observers testify that most birds eat insects in many eat practical nothing else. The thrushes, native sparrows, larks and wrens search the surface of the soil for their food. The woodpeckers give special attention to the bark and limbs of trees, digging into tiny cracks and openings to drag out burrowing larvae and hibernating insects. The flycatchers and warblers are to be seen sitting on high places ready to snap up the low-flying insects, while the nighthawks and swallows find their living in the higher atmosphere.

The number of insects destroyed by birds is quite beyond calculation. Few birds are entirely beneficial but there are few indeed that are entirely harmful. Perhaps the worst of these are starlings, which are becoming excessively common in places, and the English sparrow. Both of these birds should be destroyed, for not only do they harm the crops but they chase away and destroy the native birds.

Treasure Hunt

New Attempt To Salvage Wreck Of Boat Which Sank 183 Years Ago

The first stage in the new attempt to save the treasure of the wreck of H.M.S. Latine, which sank 183 years ago at the entrance to the Zuider Zee, has been accomplished. The largest dredger in the world, the Karimata, which has 131 scoops made of special steel, each of which cost $100, has been towed from the building yard at Kinderdijk, near Rotterdam, to Terschelling.

Before the dredging begins the remains of the steel Bicker Tower, which made an unsuccessful attempt last year, will have to be removed. Everything depends on a spell of favorable weather during the next two months.

Mr. Van den Broek, general manager of the Billiton Mining Company, said that the Latine was lying on clay at a depth of about 50 feet beneath the level of the sea-bed with about 40 feet of sand on top of her which it is the first purpose of the dredger to remove. The sea at that point is about 1½ fathoms, which corresponds to the draught of the Karimata.—London Times.

Wheat Market In Europe

Want To Accumulate Reserve Stocks In Event Of War

Foreign trade experts of the United States agriculture department said that unsettled political conditions in Europe might open new and larger markets for surplus American wheat during the next 12 months.

Prospects for larger sales in Europe were indicated, they said, by the recent decision of Great Britain and The Netherlands to accumulate reserve stocks of the grain in preparation for a possible outbreak of war.

Foreign trade authorities said other European powers were known to be considering similar action.

The Netherlands has begun establishment of a system for maintaining at least two months supply of wheat at all times. Grain importers and dealers would be held responsible for maintaining such stocks with subsidy assistance from the government. Little is known about the British plan.

Trade experts estimated that European wheat imports for consumption needs during the next year would be about 450,000,000 bushels or about 50,000,000 more than during the last 12 months. Reserve stocks were not included in the estimates.

The proportion of possible reserve purchases of wheat in America would depend largely on prices, officials said, pointing out that if American prices were above the world level, buyers might go elsewhere.

Official crop reports indicate that Canada and Argentina may produce 125,000,000 bushels more than last year. Trade experts said that amount probably would be sufficient to meet the most optimistic increase in world import requirements.

Must Develop North

Should Be Utilized To Hold It For The White Man

Canada must develop and utilize its northern land to hold it for the white man, W. D. Albright, superintendent of the Dominion experimental farm station at Beaverlodge, Alta., warned the American Association for the Advancement of Science in annual convention.

Like Russia, Canada must look to the north and the United States will follow its progress with satisfaction, he said. "For a particular reason of her own very proper concern, the United States must be interested in the Dominion's conquest of the north."

"In the modern surge of racial expansion, in the mad quest for economic self-sufficiency, in the race of armaments and in the unscrupulous scramble for a 'place in the sun,' which seems often to mean territorial expansion, it is to be supposed that the northern third of this continent can be held by the white man unless developed and utilized by him? What of Asia?"

Soviet Russia Plans To Surpass Britain In Naval Construction

Soviet Russia believes she can challenge Great Britain for supremacy in the quality of its naval construction, it became known with publication of a special article at Leningrad by Mikhail Kalinin, president of the Supreme Soviet.

Addressing workers at the Ordzhonikidze naval construction plant at Leningrad, Kalinin declared:

"I believe that at present our engineers, technicians, master workers and specialists should be able to accept the task of surpassing Great Britain in quality of naval construction. Hitherto no one has surpassed Great Britain in naval construction but we are going to surpass her."

The Spirit Of China

Was Shown In Gift Sent By Madame Chang Kai-Shek

In June, 1917, a war year for the United States, the present Mme. Chang Kai-Shek, as a daughter of the famous Chinese Soong family was graduated from Wellesley College.

June 18, 1928, Mme. Chang's classmate held their annual reunion on the shores of Lake Waban. But 1938 is a war year for China, and Mme. Chang could not attend.

Instead she sent a gift of silver spoons, which were used at a reunion tea. While she sent a message that through her gift she would feel that she was sharing in the festivities, she added that the spoons are "to show that a spoon may be liked, but China can't."

Mme. Chang's patriotism is characteristic of the new China which she and her generalissimo husband have helped to build, a new China which with old stoicism is doggedly defending itself in a war still undeclared. Her humor and love of subtle parable are likewise characteristic.

The western world should realize that these racial traits are not the least important of the weapons with which China fights an aggressor.

How The Language Grows

Words Colned By Inventors Soon Come Into General Use

The word "television" was coined by J. L. Baird in 1925 to describe apparatus for television and was registered by him as a trade mark. On account, however, of the general adoption of the word in the United States and elsewhere to denote any kind of television apparatus, Baird, Ltd., has decided to abandon its application as a trade mark, so that in future there will be no restriction upon the use of the word in connection with television. "Television" may thus be used in future as freely as "telegraph" and "telephone."

The word telegraph was first applied by Chappé in France, in 1792, to his invention of the semaphore system of transmitting messages to a distance; and the word telephone was used by Sudre in 1828 for a system of signaling by musical sounds. It was employed in 1844 to describe a powerful wind instrument to convey signals at sea during foggy weather. Philipp Reis, in 1861, called his ingenious instrument a telephone, so that he may be regarded as the inventor of the name of the modern instrument. Alexander Graham Bell adopted the word in 1876 for his "Electrical Speaking Telephone" From Nature.

Application for a patent on an egg dry-cleaning process for poultry farms has been made to the British Patent Office. Arab-Jewish Troubles Keep Palestine In A State Of Tension

Jerusalem. — Sporadic bombings and other attacks kept Palestine in a state of tension as Arab-Jewish strife continued. At least 16 persons were injured and the death of one person on the northern frontier was reported.

The new casualties gave Palestine a toll of 59 dead and more than 200 wounded since rioting broke out July 5 following the hanging June 20 of Benjamin Joseph, 19-year-old Jew.

Haifa was the main seat of trouble Sunday. A bomb thrown at a bus in the mixed quarter of the city seriously injured a Jewish driver and slightly wounded the others. The assailant escaped. Shots were fired at passengers from a hillside but firing ceased when the driver replied with his revolver.

Ten Jews were wounded seriously when another bus in Haifa was bombed near grounds of the government hospital despite machine-guns posts manned by marines and other troops in nearby rooftops. The bomber escaped.

British authorities rushed to the port and surrounding district every soldier not needed in Jerusalem or southern areas to maintain order, including 450 marines and sailors from the British warship Repulse. Steel-helmeted troops patrolled streets.

Arabs who rushed from stores in the market place were driven back by patrols that later patrolled Jewish stores and gathering places from the Arab section. Sailors carried wounded rifles.

A young Jewish girl was stoned and seriously injured in a street running parallel to the section in the port occupied by armed sailors.

A patrol in an armored car on the northern frontier encountered a large armed band near the Jewish settlement at Hanita and killed one member. The remainder scattered after an hour's fight.

Soldiers throughout the northern area were engaged in tracking down bands waging guerrilla warfare from the hills.

Since Friday's bombing, Jerusalem itself has been quiet.

So far this year nearly 300 Moslems and Jews have been killed in outbreaks of rioting and disorder in Palestine.

Most Arab shops in Jerusalem remained closed. Few persons dared venture into the streets.

British Merchant Marine

Sees Grave Danger Of Competition From Other Nations

London.—The Labor opposition assailed the government in the House of Commons for letting the British merchant marine be "swept off the seas" by competition from three continents.

Arthur Greenwood charged "the United States is building 70 ships in the United Kingdom to-day."

While this is happening, he said, "some of our competitors now are heavily subsidized. The United States, Japan, Germany, Italy and France are subsidized in one form or another."

Pointing to wartime dangers, Mr. Greenwood said the British merchant marine had 2,000 fewer ships than in 1914, excluding tankers.

He added it possessed only 28 per cent of the world's tonnage compared to 44 per cent. before the Great War.

Alan Graham, Conservative, gave notice he would ask Alfred Duff Cooper, first lord of the admiralty, if he knew Japan was building 20-knot, 10,000-ton deadweight tankers "which can only serve warlike, and not commercial purposes."

Mr. Greenwood, recalling the statement of Sir Thomas Inskip, minister for defence co-ordination, that Great Britain is in substantially as good condition for cargo space as in 1914, charged the minister had included an Dominion and protectorate tonnage in his figures.

These ships, Mr. Greenwood declared, could be used only for local services in the event of war.

"At present 70 per cent. of food stuffs of the United Kingdom are sea-borne," he said.

Must Import Grain

British Will Have To Depend On Empire For War Time Provisions

London.—The government is determined to aid domestic agriculture to the fullest extent, but war-time provisioning of the United Kingdom must ultimately depend upon supremacy of the royal navy, Prime Minister Chamberlain told a parliamentary delegation.

The group called upon Mr. Chamberlain at the House of Commons to seek an explanation of a disputed passage of his speech at Kettering, in which he warned any attempt by Great Britain to grow all the food it would need would ruin those "empire and foreign countries who are dependent on our markets."

The prime minister prefaced his remarks with an expression of gratitude for the opportunity of clarifying certain errors of interpretation he claimed had been made by critics of his speech.

He insisted whatever the efforts to increase home production, the nation could not "reasonably" count on British self-sufficiency in foodstuffs.

Board Will Buy Wheat

Wheat Board Will Purchase From To The New Conservative Leader

Ottawa.—The Canadian Wheat Board during the coming crop year will buy all wheat offered it, paying an initial minimum price to be fixed later by the board, and giving the farmer participating certificates entitling him to share in any profits made by the board in selling above the minimum price, it was indicated here.

Following a cabinet meeting, Prime Minister Mackenzie King announced the Wheat Board would purchase from the farmers during the new crop year, starting August 1, with out limitations imposed on such purchases throughout the present crop year.

During the present crop year, the board fixed a minimum price of 87½ cents a bushel, ratified by the government. Recognition of how low the market price might fall, the producer was to get that minimum.

London.—Fairbridge Farm Schools announced Captain J. C. DunWaters had presented his Fintyre estate in the Okanagan valley of British Columbia to the schools.

The older boys at the Prince of Wales Fairbridge farm school will go to Fintyre for farming and training almost immediately.

Fintyre estate lies on the west side of Okanagan lake near Vernon and covers 2,500 acres. It was acquired by Captain DunWaters when he came to Canada in 1919 and he has used it for the raising of Ayrshires.

The farm is self-contained, being made up of range land, orchards, preserves of mountain goat and deer, and tiapines. It has its own water development.

Captain DunWaters is popularly known as the "Laird of Fintyre." He was formerly a Scottish publisher.

Evian-les-Bains, France. — Great Britain and the United States were understood to have reached a tentative agreement regarding a permanent international committee to assist refugees from greater Germany.

The Anglo-American plan, it was said in well-informed quarters at the 32-nation inter-governmental refugee conference in session here, would provide:

1. That the headquarters of the organization would be in London instead of in Paris, at first suggested.
2. That it remain free of close affiliation with existing refugee groups organized under auspices of the League of Nations.

Great Britain, the United States, France, Argentina and Brazil would be represented on the permanent committee.

Possibility of creating branch offices in the various European capitals also was under consideration, especially in those where the refugee problem is serious or likely to become so.

Approval of the Anglo-American plan by the inter-governmental conference, which was called by President Roosevelt, would pave the way for possible negotiations with Germany to hasten and systematize emigration of German and Austrian Jews, it was said.

The delegates reported German officials had reluctantly offered to allow Austrian Jews to leave with 75 per cent. of their goods as an incentive to speed up emigration for more than 50,000 planning to quit Austria before the end of the year if arrangements can be made.

Berlin.—A government spokesman described as "top, ridiculous words" the assertion—made by the Austrian refugee, Arthur Rosenberg at the inter-governmental refugee committee meeting in Evian-les-Bains—that 75 per cent. of Austrians of Japan's campaign.

Was Widely Known

Winnipeg.—P. Graham Padwick, 50, known and respected by thousands of western Canada school pupils and adults for his development of outdoor games playing among them, died last week. He was director of school orchestras for the Winnipeg school board.

Ottawa.—With a new leader, a revised policy, a new organization and with 48 each on the second.

These votes were divided approximately as follows: Yukon, seven; British Columbia, 70; Alberta, 60; Saskatchewan, more than 70; Manitoba, 115; Ontario, more than 600; Quebec, more than 400; New Brunswick, more than 70; Nova Scotia, more than 70; Prince Edward Island, 35.

Dr. Manion won the leadership by a greater margin than did R. H. R. B. Bennett at the 1927 Winnipeg convention, although the total vote was practically the same. On the first ballot at Winnipeg Mr. Bennett had 594 votes against 345 for Hon. Hugh Guthrie, his closest rival. On the second he polled 750 won.

One other difference was that at Winnipeg all five losing candidates lost votes to Mr. Bennett on the second ballot while here Dr. Manion and Mr. MacPherson shared in the votes changed on the second count and both increased their strength.

With the co-operation of all the party followers Dr. Manion predicted a victory for the party at the next general election which, he warned, "may sneak up on us like a thief in the night."

The Mackenzie King government, he declared, was "on the skids." It was "a do-nothing government."

Prime Minister Mackenzie King could do nothing to save his administration. It was headed for defeat just as surely as Conservatives were in 1935.

Dr. Manion himself was a victim of that defeat, for he lost his seat for Fort William to a Liberal candidate. However, he was assured of a chance to re-enter the house when Mrs. George Black, one of the two women in the House of Commons, announced she would resign her seat for Dr. Manion in his favor and ask Prime Minister King to give the new leader an acclamation.

Outbreak In Shanghai

Exploding Bombs And Assassins' Bullets Create Turmoil

Shanghai.—Exploding bombs and assassins' bullets ushered in the first anniversary of China's armed resistance to Japanese invaders and threw the International Settlement into turmoil.

Three bombs were thrown simultaneously at a Japanese sentry post on Garden Bridge, a leading restaurant of the city—now used as Japanese headquarters and the Yokohama Specie Bank branch, also on the Bund.

One Chinese was killed and another wounded.

Police reserves and foreign defence units were called out to guard against more serious outbreaks of terrorism in China's commercial capital.

A cordon quickly was thrown around the foreign area, blocking all traffic between the International Settlement and Japanese-occupied territory.

An unidentified Japanese riding a bicycle in the International sector guarded by United States marines was shot and killed. His assassin here.

In Japanese-occupied West Hongkew, a part of Shanghai, a Japanese sentry was shot and killed by three Chinese with their hand grenades.

Three bombs were tossed against a Japanese cotton mill on the settlement outskirts, and a few moments later three more bombs exploded in the mill's living quarters. One British Sikh soldier from India was wounded.

Japanese reported new gains over Chinese armies defending the Yangtze river approach to Hankow, China's provisional capital and goal of Japan's campaign.

Elevator Destroyed

Calgary, Alta.—Fire destroyed the Alberta Pacific Grain Company elevator at Woodhouse, 35 miles northwest of here. Between 800 and 900 bushels of wheat burned. Cause of the fire and total damage have not been determined.

Scheme For Training Of Royal Air Force Pilots In Dominion

London.—Sir Kingsley Wood, secretary of state for air, told the House of Commons arrangements were being made for an officer to be sent immediately to Canada to explore the possibilities of working out a scheme for the training of Royal Air Force pilots in the Dominion.

Sir Kingsley made this statement in replying to Clement Attlee, leader of the opposition, who asked if the air secretary's attention had been drawn to a statement by Prime Minister Mackenzie King that the Dominion government is prepared to afford facilities for R.A.F. training in connection with its own establishments.

The minister said: "Yes, an offer to this effect has been communicated to His Majesty's government in the United Kingdom by the Canadian prime minister through the United Kingdom high commissioner."

"A reply has been sent—an expression of warm appreciation of the offer," Sir Kingsley added, "and arrangements are in the making in accordance with the suggestion of the Canadian prime minister for an officer to be sent immediately to Canada to explore, in co-operation, the possibility of working out such a scheme of training facilities in Canada."

Throughout the press Prime Minister King's statement overshadowed foreign news. The Times gives an editorial to it, drawing the conclusion that not only will it be "appreciated in this country," but that "it shows the readiness of the Canadian government to co-operate . . . in assuring the safety of the whole Commonwealth of British Nations."

NOTES AND COMMENTS

PEOPLE who claim that Canada has no obligations towards Great Britain must certainly be lacking in national sentiment. This "too proud to fight" attitude sickens one. There are many who, while leaving others to fight their battles, are usually in the front rank when favors are to be distributed.

WE HAVE SEEN it in labor disputes and political controversies in the Crows' Nest Pass. There are some who are forever on the "make," and who will follow anyone as long as they get something for their pretended loyalty.

NO WONDER such people are forever discontented and who would crucify their benefactors if the mob raised the hue and cry against them. If ever strong leadership is needed, it is now the time, and for Canadian politicians to dodge the matter of helping in defence measures in co-operation with Great Britain is a shrinking, cowardly attitude. Many men from the British Isles and from Canada have sacrificed more than those who stayed at home will ever sacrifice, no matter how long they may live, and to these men the dodging of certain factions and politicians to escape responsibility for Empire defence just makes them realize there are many to whom the term "yellow bellies" aptly applies.

AS LONG as this world endures, the strong will attempt to crush the weak. Take a look at Europe and note what scant consideration minorities receive. That's the kind of treatment Canadians would get if they became "too proud to fight."

THE JOY which plentiful rains have brought to the drought areas of the western provinces will be shared by all people throughout the Dominion. Unless you have visited a drought area during the last ten years, it is difficult to fully realize the battle it has been for those farmers who have faced the trials and disappointments which successive dry years have brought.

WHEN YOU have seen horses and cattle pawing at bare ground trying to find roots of grass that were never there, and farm folks anxiously scan the skies every morning and see no indication of rain, it impresses on one the futility of man's efforts when Nature is unkind. The farmer is the biggest gambler of all, not from choice, but because circumstances make him. Ask the average wage-earner to invest his wages or mortgage them in the chance of being repaid a few months hence if the weather is favorable, and he would hesitate and in most cases refuse. But the farmer has to do it every year, and it got to the stage in Saskatchewan where they hadn't any more to invest and simply had to go on relief. We take our hats off to those men and women who "stuck it out" and hope that favorable weather will continue to enable them to get at least a portion back of what they have lost during the past nine or ten years.

A WELL-KNOWN Blairmore citizen was discussing with other well-known citizens of the Crows' Nest Pass the political outlook in Rocky Mountain constituency. One believed that Unity was the most advisable course, while another believed that the old line parties were more likely to ensure sound government than third parties.

THE RECORD of third parties in Canada is not alluring towards a continuance of support of them. Usually they represent a minority, and this minority can bargain with either of the other two parties on a coercive basis. Canada has progressed under the two-party system, and third parties have risen like mushrooms and passed into oblivion. Two years hence, an election will be held for both provincial and federal parliaments. It is time organization was being proceeded with in the Crows' Nest Pass.

Hiram A. Walker, of whiskey fame, neophyte of the famous distillery, attributes his long life, 98 years, to being moderate in all things. He is not a teetotaler and considers smoking has helped to prolong his life. Reminds one of the story of two old men of the village, who prided themselves on their vigorous condition, despite their advanced ages. One said it was because he had never smoked, and the other because he had always enjoyed the weed.

New Insulin Treatment

Old Indian Herb Remedy Reported By B.C. Physicians

Discovery of a new possible source of insulin, arising from experiments by two British Columbia physicians with an old Indian herb remedy, was reported in the current issue of the Canadian Medical Association Journal.

The new extract, it developed, will eliminate hypodermic injections, said an article by Doctors R. G. Large and H. N. Brocklesby, both of Prince Rupert, B.C., disclosing their research work on the roots of the Devil's Club, "a shrub that grows wild in great abundance along the coast of British Columbia."

Made by boiling bark from the plant roots, the extract has given "remarkable" results in reducing the sugar in the blood of a test group of diabetic rabbits, the article said. The extract, unlike insulin which necessitates hypodermic injections, is taken through the mouth.

"Our attention was brought to this material," the article continues, "through the examination by one of us of a surgical patient who, hospitalized, developed marked symptoms of diabetes."

"This person, it was learned, had kept in apparent good health for several years by oral doses of an infusion of this bark root, and is in fact still leading a normal life with the aid of this infusion."

"Such a preparation has long been used by Pacific coast Indians, though for what specific purpose is not clear," the article concluded.

Complete Long Motor Trip

Three Englishmen Followed New Route From India To England

Three young Englishmen arrived in London from Delhi, India, after a 6,500-mile drive in an automobile that cost them $70 and took them over a route never before attempted in a car.

The men, Captain C. V. Griffin of the Royal Engineers, Lieut. G. W. M. Kenrick of the South Staffordshires, and O'Brien Thompson, an engineer, spent two months on the road, repaired one broken axle and three broken springs and stayed with natives in mud huts and tents.

Once they thought they were stopped by a seasonal river 150 feet wide and four feet deep. But coolies helped them dismantle the car and carry it across to the opposite bank where they re-assembled it.

Not That Kind

In Scotland children habitually refer to a slice of bread and jam as a "piece," and workmen talk of taking a "piece" for their dinner-hour. This vernacular use of the word led to some confusion at the Empire Exhibition the other day. A pacific visitor inquired of a girl attendant the way to the Peace Pavilion, and was diverted on being asked "Is it sandwich you'll be wanting?"

Connecticut first raised tobacco between 1640 and 1660.

Makes Faces For Living

Puppets And Marionettes In Clay Is One Woman's Business

Miss Meta K. Hannay of Boston loves to make faces. She has made 37 so far and could, she says, go on making them forever.

The faces are not mere contortions of the features, however, but masks for marionettes. Puppet faces undergo all processes before completion. They are hand-sculpted, hand-painted and painted by hand. Although not two are alike, each set is interchangeable. For example, the same face will serve for Cassius, Ichabod Crane or Peter Quince.

Simplicity and space-saving are paramount virtues in puppeteering, Miss Hannay thinks.

She is able to construct a light, workable stage in a few minutes. She saves old sheets and dyes them in pastel colors for curtains, paints her own backdrop on cardboard and can evolve lighting equipment from a string of Christmas tree bulbs. She is even ingenious enough to dispense with the wooden "control" to which the marionette's strings are usually attached.

Miss Hannay also makes "fat puppets," which are worked by the fingers. She has a complete Punch and Judy show of this sort, with capes and hoods made from old socks selected from neighbors.

NEW HIGH OR LOW-BACK SLIP By Anne Adams

Definitely—this is a slip that's in a class by itself. The pattern (No. 4842) will make a woman take out her scissors out immediately—for it's so simple—and the illustrated step-by-step sewing instructions are so easy to follow. It's a style that fits the front and back panels, and how the bodice and shoulders are cut in one piece so that the straps will not slip down. It's a style to you favorite for its "no pinning" influence on the figure, and won't twist or bind. Make several slips in durable silks or synthetics, yet wear them with a "no care" Fall frocks to fit superbly, with a wrinkle underneath to spoil their perfection.

Pattern 4842 is available in misses' sizes 14, 16, 18, 20, 22, 24, 26, 28, 40 and 42. Size 16 takes 2½ yards 39 (inch) fabric.

Spend twenty cents (20c) in coins (stamp) for the pattern—except for the Anne Adams pattern. Write plainly.

Size, Name, Address and Style Number and send order to the Anne Adams Pattern Dept., Winnipeg, Manitoba, or to the Anne Adams Pattern Union, 175 McDermot Ave. E., Winnipeg.

A monument on a desert island and a prosaic ruling which established legal death, stood as reminders that just one year ago Amelia Earhart and Frederick J. Noonan vanished trying to fly across the vast South Pacific.

To Protect Newspapers

Distribution Company Is London Prepared For Air Raids

Editor & Publisher, New York, says they now have an A.R.P. office in London—Air Raid Protection, we gather from a piece in the Newspaper World—which is mighty concerned with the welfare of journalists in the event of a hostile air attack. The Government has emphasized that "in an emergency the continued distribution of newspapers would be a vital factor in maintaining public morale."

To date, newspapers have not taken any specific precautions, but one of the largest newspaper distribution companies of the city has an elaborate program. Truck drivers and their assistants taking papers to railheads must wear clothing which will give reasonable protection against gas. Cheap wrapping paper will be used on bundles, to be discarded if contaminated by gas. Ten per cent. of the plant staff of 3,000 people will be highly trained in antiaircraft, fire, and first-aid work. Field telephones have been acquired against a breakdown in the normal public service. Storm and bicycle lanterns have been provided should public lighting fail.

Alternative space has been arranged for every department so that the landing of a bomb will not disrupt the organization, and bedrooms and canteen service will be ready to accommodate workers held in the building by a prolonged raid. The basement of the Central London building, several stories in extent, is being completely gasproofed as a shelter for the entire staff. And similar arrangements are being completed in all the firm's branch offices throughout England.

It is suggested also that newspapers' private wire systems be used as an auxiliary if a raid should damage the Post Office wires. The lathe are being protected in many technical ways against destruction by bombs, with specially constructed buildings, duplicated services, and routing diagrams for connections around a damaged area.

Yes, London looks ahead—but to what?

Miss, famous as the laziest car in the world because it would not get up to lap a saucer of milk, but instead dipped in its paw when licked the paw, has died in Odense, Denmark, birthplace of Hans Christian Andersen the fairytale writer.

DEBORAH: EMERGENCY LEADERSHIP

Golden text. Who knoweth whether thou art not come to the Kingdom for such a time as this? Esther 4:14.

Lesson: Judges 4:1-5:31.

Devotional reading: Psalm 4:61-3, 8-11.

Explanation and comments:

Isred Oppressed by Sisera, Captain of Jabin, King of Canaan, Judges 4:1-3.

Joshua's conquest of Canaan was incomplete, and many cities remained in the possession of the original inhabitants. The Canaanites were a confederation of tribes against their common enemies within and round about.

It was a rude, rough age, "Israel's Rock" being the name of Mount Hermon.

Deborah, a prophetess, raised a band of them that despooled them."

A great crisis then came. Jabin, King of the northern confederacy of the Canaanites, through Sisera, his commander-in-chief, had for 20 years a military despotism over the northern district of Canaan. Nine hundred chariots of iron had he.

He was a danish, his power might grow till he regained the whole land and sealed Israel's doom.

Deborah's challenge to Israel was weak and struggling people, whose future was of immense consequence to the whole history of religion, charged with a mighty spiritual destiny, the dash of a great prophetess.

CHAPTER XV.—Continued

She scanned the gilt-and-mirrored room. There was a profusion of Americans, a rich variety of Americans, but there, but not the one American, she sought.

Lady Ross took a table on the balcony commanding a view of the room, ordered a glass of sherry, a turbot bonne femme, and a salad, and kept watch. At a table below her a man emerged from the shadow of a wine card as big as a baby's blanket; and then she did see a familiar face, her father's. Opposite him was Mrs. Clara Martha Phelps, looking twice as patrician as the earl, and nearly as happy. Lady Ross resisted the temptation to drop a lump of ice on her sire's pate. If they saw her they'd ask her to join them and she did not feel that she was good company just then.

A smacking sound made her turn. Behind her in a corner, alone at a table for four, a man was smacking his lips over a glass of Burgundy, and looking ready to perform a major operation on a steak the size of a dictionary. The man was neither stocklike himself, with his mischievous complexion, portersque jowls and a hamburger neck. On seeing Ross he got up and rolled toward her, an avalanche of beef. Stopping at her table he said,

"Lady Ross, Bingley."

"Yes."

"Punder's my name."

"Oh, yes, Mr. Punder. I remember you, of course."

"Where's that Yank?" Punder shot at her.

"I presume you mean Mr. Ernest Bingley."

"That's just who I mean."

"I don't know," Ross said.

"Huh! You don't? Hey! Done bunk me!"

"He has left Bingley Castle, if that's what you mean, Mr. Punder, and I believe he is somewhere in London, I don't know where. I wish I did."

"So do I," said Punder. "If I lay my hands on that dirty, little barge."

"Mr. Bingley is neither dirty, little, nor a bargee," said Ross, warmly.

"Hah! Ain't he?" said Punder.

"Quite the contrary."

"That's what you think, said Punder.

"It is."

"Well, you're wrong. He's a fake. He's an impostor. He's a nobody without a penny to his name," declared Punder.

"I'm afraid, Mr. Punder, your steak has gone straight to your head," said Ross.

"Hah, has it?" said Punder. "Well, one of my men just phoned me from Paris. He had a talk with O. G. Wyncoop. Seems Wyncoop is hoping, maybe because he's classed as an undesirable alien on account of what his kin did here. Now," threw in Mr. Punder nonchalantly, "that old Wyncoop isn't a rabbish himself."

"I fail to see how this applies to Mr. Ernest Bingley."

"Oh, you'll see," said Punder. "The net of it is that Bingley is no more a millionaire than that fish on your plate. He's just a country bumpkin that stuffs pct canaries for a living in a village in Iowa, or Ohio, or Oshoochoo or some such place. But, he's a sly cove, and he sold up his shop to come over here and try out some of his cute games on us slow Beethavers. Well, he took me in. To the tune of twenty thousand pounds—"

"Are you accusing Mr. Bingley of stealing?" asked Ross, pale as the table-cloth.

"No. Not exactly," said Punder.

"He broke no law, or I'd set Scotland Yard on him. It was a legitimate enough business deal, sharper than many another. He caught me napping. Fooled Pete Tyler, too. Pete didn't lose anything, but I did. I don't mind the twenty thousand quid, of course; but I hate being stung. I got pride. And when I catch up with you young Bungle Bingley he'll feel the weight of my beetle-squashers."

Mr. Punder floundered a size 12A shoe.

"Are you sure, Mr. Punder," said Ross, quietly, "that Mr. Bingley has no money?"

"Of course he has," said Punder. "Did I just tell you he short-changed me out of twenty thousand? I don't quite see why he made me hand over those notes instead of cash. Of course, by now, he's had them discounted, and has probably lit out for Paris."

"That's what you think," said Lady Ross.

"Huh?"

Mr. Punder did not explain.

"Mr. Punder," she said, "have you no idea at all where he might be?"

Punder began to wheeze with gusty laughter.

"What did the rascal do to you?" he asked.

"That's my affair, I think."

More laughter shook the portly Punder.

"Sorry, but I don't see the joke," said Ross.

"Ho ho ho!" chuckled Punder.

"That little knave doesn't miss a trick. Takes 'em all, high and low, in his stride. Well, as we're in the same boat, let's join forces."

"No, thank you."

"Well well, I'll hunt you and hunt. But if I find him first—"

"You'll grind his bones to make your bread, I suppose."

"Ho ho ho," roared Punder.

"Just I will. If you get on his track, just ring me up at my Park Lane house, will you?"

"Yes, if you'll notify me the minute you find him."

"It's a bargain."

"I'm staying with the Countess of Bathberry in Onslow Square," Ross told him. "And now, Mr. Punder, hadn't you better get back to your steak?"

"I expect so," said Punder. "Do you like hash?"

"Yes, why?"

"That's what I'm going to make out of E. Bingley," said Punder, and returned to his steak.

Lady Ross was sipping her coffee when she heard a voice call out, "Yoo hoo, Ross, you hoo!"

Her father, on his way out of the restaurant, had spied her. She waved her napkin at him.

"Come up to the balcony he did, and Clara-Martha Phelps came with him. "Ross," he said, "meet your mother."

Mrs. Phelps giggled.

"I mean to say," went on the earl, "she's going to be in a few months."

"Bless you, my children," smiled Ross.

"We're to be married in Vienna," said the earl, "just as soon as Clara-Martha finishes her psychoanalysis. Then ho! for a honeymoon in Venice and back to Bingley Castle in time to water the tulip bulbs."

"Congratulate you both."

Mrs. Phelps placed a kiss on Ross's ear.

"I've always wanted a daughter," she said, "but I say," said the earl, "any trace of old Ernest?"

"I haven't found him," Lady Ross said, "but I've found him out."

"Eh! Riddles?" said the earl. "Tell me the answer quickly. We're late for the pants."

"Tell you later. Run along now."

"Come, ducky," said the earl, giving his ear to Mrs. Phelps.

"Yes, Georgie-porgie," said Clara-Martha Phelps.

When they had gone, Ross summoned her waiter.

"Please tell Max that Lady Ross Bingley would like to see him for a moment," she said.

"Very good, m'lady."

Max presently approached her table. He had the air and profile of an emperor entering Rome in a triumphal chariot. Max spoke nine languages, and knew enough about the British nobility, it was said to make a lordship by blazon if he were so inclined. He wasn't. He preferred to be the major domo at Nero's. Besides, he had a fortune.

"Good evening, my lady," he said.

"May I offer you my felicitations?"

"On what, Max?"

Once you sweeten your morning cereal with BEE HIVE Syrup you'll know how good cereal can taste.

TRY IT TOMORROW

On the successful culmination of his lordship's romance.

"Max, you know everything," laughed Ross.

"I regret to know that you can find Mr. Ernest Bingley," Max said.

"How do you know I want to find him?"

"A little bird—"

"Minding my father?"

"Max, let me pose a question."

"Please do, my lady."

"Suppose they were in London—"

"I am."

"And broke—"

"I have been."

"What would you do? Where would you go?"

"Meaning me, or a hypothetical character?"

"Meaning a young American."

Max gave thought to the matter, as if he were Tiberius considering a matter of state.

"He is without funds?" he queried.

"Practically. Nothing but a return ticket to the States, I think."

"What did I," said Max, "when I first came to London as a young man, and a very poor young man, was to sit on a bench on the Thames Embankment and plan how to become a rich one. On the benches there, my lady, one finds many who were rich, and some who are going to be."

"I'll try there," said Ross, getting up.

"Surely not alone?"

"Yes."

"Is it a vile night."

"No matter. Thank you, Max."

"Always at your service, my lady."

Ross paid her bill and stepped out into the fog.

Trans-Atlantic Airlines To Have Sprinkling System For Fests

Bugs will not be permitted to hitch-hike on the trans-Atlantic airlines, the United States Commerce Department said. A report from the American commercial attaché at London said that Imperial Airways has developed an insecticide sprinkling system designed to rid aircraft of all insects pests. Imperial Airways and Pan American Airways are to inaugurate joint service between Great Britain and the United States this fall.

Ourselves Of Yesterday

During an intermission at a party, some prominent business men were discussing an absent member. Few could find anything pleasant to say about the absent person in question. One guest, who had worked his way to success up the ladder of many minor firms and failures, said, "That reminds me of about 20 words I once memorized from Dr. Isaac Goldberg's 'Tin Pan Alley': 'Snoberry is but a point in time. Let us have patience with our inferiors, they are ourselves of yesterday."

With Alex. Balloch, The Journal's star reporter and sports editor, at the coast for two weeks, and Tom Holstead off on a couple of weeks sick leave, it leaves the office very short of help. Added to this is the holiday feeling which the editor has, and you will therefore quickly perceive the reason for the paper being somewhat curtailed.

Mrs. J. A. McLeod, of Cadomin, her daughters Nora and Vivian and sons Sidney and Jack, motored home last week and spent a few days visiting friends. They are proceeding on to the coast. Many old friends were pleased to greet them. Mr. McLeod was superintendent of International mine up till 1935, when he went to Cadomin as general manager.

"IT REALLY IS A VERY PRETTY GARDEN"

Looking at the garden plot at the town hall, which is under the care of William Borrors, the words of the song came to mind. Peony and iris blooms, with the background of trees and shrubs, form a pleasing sight on which "Bill" sits and gazes in calm reflection in the evening after his day's work is done and he has turned on the irrigation system, which he planned for watering the trees with a minimum of labor.

MAIN STREET IS BRIGHTENED

Painters have worked on the following buildings, which gives the main street a greatly improved appearance:

The Motordrome, Celli building, Coleman Hardware, Sentinel Motors and Pattinson Hardware, and the Grand Union hotel.

If the good work continues to include all the buildings in the business area, visitors will gain a much better impression of the town as they pass through.

Pan-handlers on pay-days are becoming such a nuisance that some complaints are being made. Saturday last was especially bad.

PASTE THIS DATE IN YOUR HAT—AUGUST 29—

or tie a string on your finger, for this is the date schools will re-open. "Why bring that up?" Merely because so many stayed away the first morning after the Christmas holidays that the school board secretary decided to take time by the forelock and have this great family journal proclaim to the wide world the re-opening date.

Dr. C. Rose, graduate of Manitoba university, 1926, and who has been practicing in Simpson, Sask., during the past six years, was here on Saturday making arrangements to commence duty under the medical contract recently voted on by the mining employees. LEATHER MEDAL FOR PAYING TAXES—EAST COLEMAN MAN WINS

A Mr. Kostick, of "Bushtown," was first to pay school taxes after notices were mailed last week. It was on Friday he paid. On Saturday (pay-day) Eddie Wood was the first to pay, remarking as he did so, that if the mayor could get his name in The Journal for being the first to pay his town taxes, he ought to be given mention! So, Eddie, here's your name for all and sundry to behold, and it costs you nothing for this enviable free publicity. The limit of the discount period is August 8th.

GOES ON HOLIDAYS

Alex. Balloch, of The Journal staff, has cast aside the smell of printers' ink for two weeks holidays at Vancouver. Instead of looking up local merchants for ads, and keeping his eyes and ears open for news in this thriving town, he will bask in the sun-line of English Bay, and find out what's going along the water front.

He is travelling by automobile, and included in the party are his father, Jim Wilson, Mrs. O. Smith and Muriel Halliwell.
